Love's Labor Wins a Victory for Yankees

Carroll Brown Finally Gets a Chance to Start Game and Easily Curbs Efforts of Cleveland Batters.

By HEYWOOD BROWN.

"Honest labour wears a lovely face." Carroll Brown started a game at the Polo Grounds yesterday for the first time this season and pitched the Yankees to a brilliant victory against the Cleveland Indians. The score was 2 to 1.

Work, which came into the world because of Noah or Eve or the Serpent, has been around here a good many years, but somehow or other folk can't agree as to its merits. Much has been said in favor of work, but in the main the best people seem to be against it. Certainly it could not carry a single ward in this town, for many who know nothing about it would be in the opposition just for the sake of principle. Carroll Brown is uncompromisingly with the minority. He likes work.

Brown has one of those contracts which may neither be bent nor broken. No stipulation is made that the player shall do anything but draw his salary, and that has been said in the extent of his activities. A sore arm handicapped the pitcher at the beginning of the season, and he has been extensively idle. Now and again he has been called upon to walk out to the coaching lines to "At a boy!" the batters and discourage baserunning, and once or twice he has been allowed to sweep out lost baseball games.

But by far the greater part of his time has been spent in sitting under cover and watching the ball games. For this he is paid a shade less than a member of the House of Representatives. There are many things in the world worse than sitting still and watching ball games. We have done it for six months without losing a pound. Sam Crane has watched the Giants change like Mulvane's regiment from colonel to drummer boy not once or twice but a score of times. He has stood the strain.

Brown, however, can't abide idleness. From the first day of the season until yesterday he has been pestering Donovan to let him get out and work. On the slightest pretext he would rush to the pen and warm up furiously, only to come back to inactivity with a disappointed perspiration.

Carroll Brown has warmed up through some mighty tense baseball moments. During one world's series he pitched a full fifteen innings in deep right field, but never reached the firing line. Coming from the Athletics to the Yankees last season Brown found work very slack, and probably he was seldom as happy a moment as he did yesterday when he walked to the box with a full nine innings of labor before him. As a poet has said:

Work and thus will live the day
For the life that others die.
That that work will not pass
Cannot feel the life that dies.

But there was another poet who said: "Ah, why should life all labor be?" "Ah, why," is our echo.

Getting down to work, Guy Morton was Brown's opponent during the first seven innings, and was effective throughout, except in the third, when the Yankees bunched hits for two runs. Harstad finished the game.

The Cleveland Indians scored against Brown in the eighth, when Chapman, the first batter, singled. He was followed by Joe Jackson, and things looked a bit dubious, but the slugger got three bases, Morton took two, and a single by Willie's hard grounder and threw him out also, but Ragan scored on the play.

Both teams fielded excellently, and the game, like all the others in the present series, was played in fast time. Although the clashes between the Indians and the Yankees promised little, it has furnished as good baseball as has been seen here this season.

Dan Boone began the third inning with a double to left centre. Leslie Numakamer sent the ball farther yet toward right centre, and the drive was good for three bases. Morton took two, Boone made a fine stop of Willie's hard grounder and threw him out also, but Ragan scored on the play.

SENATORS BLANK TIGERS
Gallia Allows Only Four Hits—Errors Prove Costly.

Washington, Aug. 11.—Gallia led Detroit down with four hits to-day, Washington winning by a score of 3 to 0.

Errors by Young and Crawford figured in the scoring, two of the Senators' runs, the other being the result of McBride's single and Gallia's double. Washington (A. L.), Detroit (A. L.).
